CASTING:

TENACIOUS NYMPH

Breeze hid in the forest canopy as bedlam unfolded beneath. Her village was in shambles. Alana and her worm were wreaking havoc, killing or capturing her sisters. How could she have been so blind. She should have known that Alana would come for revenge.

When the elders found out that Alana planned to fuse her essence with a worm, they imprisoned her. She would have died in her cell, but she had already gone farther than the nymphs had imagined. She was able to summon her worm to help her escape, and then disappeared into the swamps.

Breeze still couldn't believe that Alana was capable of such atrocities. It wasn't the Alana she knew, not any more. Now, she was Alana the lich worm. Her fellow sister was lost to her. When Alana returned for vengeance, it took the whole village by surprise. The elders were the first to fall, and without their powerful magic, the rest were soon to follow.

Luckily for Breeze, she was already in the tree tops when Alana arrived. She desperately wanted to help her sisters, but it was too dangerous. She watched in horror as Alana dragged away those that she didn't eat immediately. They were mostly young ones, and she rounded them up in a thick net as they cowered away from her. Once all of her sisters were either dead or captured, Alana turned and left, riding atop her worm.

High above her ruined home, Breeze was devastated. She knew she had to do something, so she departed, following her corrupted sister back to where they first found her traming the worm. The Library of Gehenna was a massive stone building that had sunk deep into the swamps. Alana had made it her new home over the past months before she was stopped and imprisoned. Breeze knew she had to be careful, Alana would have been preparing this place to feed her worm.

Breeze followed Alana and entered the lair. She had no chance of fighting both Alana and her worm on her own, so she began scouting the library, hoping to find the right moment to free her sisters before any more harm could come to them.
